

Adult Learners

Tutoring can help adult learners advance in their careers and become more productive as well as more satisfied with life. Limited literacy skills can make life particularly difficult in today's society. Just think of the online information that everyone needs to have access to on a daily basis and how challenging that can be with limited reading ability.

Tutoring in adult basic education or other needed subjects is available for adults who:

- Want to complete their GED
- Need to complete the civics test required for the GED
- Want to learn English better (reading and writing)
- Need to take the naturalization/citizenship test
- Are preparing for civil service exams or advancement tests
- Want to read or write better
- Need better math skills

If you have employees or prospective employees who need to work on basic adult education skills to be safer and more productive, please inquire about group or individual sessions that can be set up in your workplace or at our facility.

Individual sessions are particularly helpful for adult learners who may be reluctant to participate in group learning situation. Work is geared to the individual and can go as fast or slow as needed.
